White Student Union Sparks Controversy in Minnesota

By Rene Steele

(NSNS) In an effort to fight an organization they accuse of espousing white supremacist beliefs, students at the University of Minnesota rallied on November 14th to protest the establishment of a white student union.

They rally, organized by students from the Coalition Against White Supremacy, protest White Student Union founder Tom David and the ten members of his organization.

"I am not a white supremacist," says David, a senior majoring in ancient history. "Affirmative action and quotas are endangering the white race."

David says it is not a question of one race being inferior to another, but rather a difference in values.

"Whites value going to school and getting a Ph.D.," says David. "Blacks don't. They value selling drugs and buying big, fancy cars."

University of Minnesota Vice President of Student Affairs Marvalene Hughes indicates that the White Student Union is not a sanctioned campus organization since its members have not signed an equal opportunity statement required by the university.

"People are making a lot of noise over something that does not exist," says Hughes.

New Housing Complex Expected For '92-'93 Term

By Christopher C. Kehl Jr.

There is something afoot for next year's residents. Besides the completion of the Nova Law building, there will be commencement of construction on the new Dormitory Complex.

This new complex will accommodate the larger influx of students for the academic year 1992-1993.

During the week of November 22, 1991, the construction fences are scheduled to go up around the new complex. Construction will begin "No later the December 1, 1991," according to John Santulli, Nova's Director of Business Services and Building Management.

"A letter of intent to the lowest bidder was mailed on November 8, 1991," he says. The new complex is going to be part of the first step for Nova's expansion.

The new building will be years ahead of other large school residence halls. Not only will the Residential Life office and staff migrate to the new building, but it will also have other surprises.

On the first floor a student would find the new Residential Life office as well as the new student mail room. Also on the first floor will be a double suite for a full time employee to live in during the year. Moving up to the fourth floor you would find a computer lab and a study area. The building will be four stories tall, and will contain 152 suites with the average two students per room.

Mr. Santulli assures that the building will have full safety systems installed, which will consist of fire alarms and fire suppression systems similar to the ones now functioning around campus. The 76,000 sq. ft. residence hall will have only one elevator primarily for freight and handicapped use only.

The rooms themselves are simple yet comfortably planned. One room will consist of two walk in closets, a bathroom with

Sexual Harassment and Sexism

Campus Men Take Action

By Jim Haug

(NSNS) While the nation listened to tales of Long Dong Silver and pubic hair on Coca-Cola cans during Clarence Thomas Supreme Court confirmation, students across the country also began re-examining their own attitudes towards sexual harassment.

Many female students have been active in fighting sexual harassment for a long time.

But when recently, a growing number of male students have become active in the feminist movement by forming male anti-sexism groups on campus to fight what they view as no longer solely "a women's issue."

"I think the men's groups are a very positive sign," says Rosemary Dempsey, the Action Vice President of the National Organization of Women (NOW).

Nova Pitcher Injured During Game

By Dan Finn

Vince Kelly, a senior at Nova University, was rushed to Bennett Hospital in Plantation, Florida, late in the afternoon on Monday October 28th, after being struck in the head with a baseball while pitching in an intrasquad baseball game.

A cat-scan was done Monday evening at Bennett Hospital, with doctors giving a prognosis of a slight concussion and a large bump on the head.

Tuesday morning Kelly's condition worsened and doctors again gave Vince another cat-scan. The doctors found a slight fracture and a bloodclot on the right side of his head, with some bleeding on his brain. Kelly went into surgery at approximately 11:50 a.m. on Tuesday morning. Surgery lasted about 2-1/2 hours.

What Next?

By Cleveland Ferguson III

You are brought into this world—perhaps inadvertently. You are trained to walk. You are trained to talk. You are trained to make decisions. Perhaps you go to pre-school. Perhaps not. You are enrolled in elementary school—perhaps a privately run one. You go to middle school, junior high, then to senior high. What next? You go to college—perhaps you were coerced by your parents. You're a freshman, then a sophomore. Only two years to go. You're a junior, then a senior. You earn a Bachelor's of Science. What next? You are hired by a company who makes large profits. You are making money. Lots of money. You marry. You divorce. You have three or four relationships. All of them go sour. You buy material goods to replace the significant others in your life. Their luster fades. You are continuously promoted in your company. You trade in your fourth car for the one you've always dreamed of. You have no love. You smoke. Your social drinking becomes habitual. You look into the mirror. You see a person who is going to retire in a few years. You can't find love. You cannot find satisfaction. You recall all the things you wanted to do with your life. You relive those dreams you had in junior, senior high—even college. You're at the twilight of your life.

There is no peace in your soul. Something is missing. You cannot philosophize the pain away. You cannot psychologically diagnose it. You cannot medically treat it. You cannot type it away. You cannot advocate against it in court. You cannot drown it out with music. You retire. You continue falling in and out of relationships. This emptiness continues to vex your soul. You've always known there was a god—perhaps you were an atheist. Religion always seemed a form of control over the masses to you. You never entertained the notion of personal communion with a Supreme Being. No, you were an evolutionist. Why is it you cannot adapt and rid yourself of this empty pain? You have been retired for twenty years. Your health is beginning to fail. Your body doesn't function like it used to.

A few years later. . . you are near death. You've never reconciled with your parents—perhaps you only loved one. You haven't spoken to your brother or sister in decades. You look back on your life and see what you have accomplished. You ask yourself, "What have I accomplished that can aid me in my moments before death?" Perhaps faith, perhaps not. Now you begin to wonder: "Is there an afterlife?" You've always felt your soul was eternal. Where will it go? Is there a god? Is there a Hell? A Heaven? Perhaps if you had faith in a spiritual realm and maintained personal communion with a Supreme Being either in solitude or with a congregation through some form of religion, you would feel solace and comfort. You would have mastered the gifts of spiritual maturity. You would feel you are going to a place of eternal peace—perhaps Heaven. But you have always been an existentialist, an agnostic, an atheist? Day to day survival has only been your concern. Material wealth has always been your goal—perhaps you never really needed love. Now you are on your deathbed. You ask yourself. . . with your last breaths: "What next?"

Helen Graham's 1975 University Illness Policies*

Illness

No excuse. . . We will no longer accept your doctor's statement as proof. If you are able to go to a doctor, you are able to come to work.

Funeral

(Other than your own.) This is no excuse. There is nothing you can do for them, and we are sure that someone else with a lesser position can attend to the arrangements. However, if the funeral is held in the late afternoon, we will be glad to let you off one hour early, provided your work is caught up for the day.

Leave of Absence

(For an operation.) We are no longer allowing this practice. We wish to discourage any thought that you may need an operation, as we believe as long as you are an employee here, you will need all of whatever you have and you should not consider having anything removed. We hired you as you are, and to have anything removed would certainly make you less than we bargained for.

Helen F. Graham
Director of Human Resources

Pregnancy

In the event of an extreme pregnancy, you will be allowed to go to the first aid room when the pains are five minutes apart. If it is a false alarm you will be docked one hour's pay.

Death

(Your own.) This will be accepted as an excuse, but we shall require two weeks notice as we feel it is your duty to teach someone else your job.

And Furthermore

Entirely too much time is spent in the restroom. In the future we will follow the practice of going in alphabetical order. For instance those whose names begin with an "A" will go 9:00-9:15. "B" will go from 9:15-9:30 and so on. If you are unable to go at your time, it will be necessary to wait until the day your turn comes around again.

* We are happy to report that Ms. Graham's human resource policies have become more lenient over the years. We wish her a fulfilling retirement.

Own Up To Your Claims: 2

By Cleveland Ferguson III

I have received many calls, stopped in the halls, praised, criticized — even ridiculed for my decision to allow the Letters to the Editor page to be printed in the November 12, 1991 issue of The Nova Knight. I have — interestingly enough — received very few letters on the subject. Many of you stated that the Knight's credibility should be questioned if the editorial staff allows the paper to be used to take pot shots at individuals, groups or institutions anonymously.

I must say that the largest objection came from faculty members at several centers within the University. Their contention was they could not effectively respond to criticisms of their practices if they did not know the source. In my last editorial I stated that the problem with the letters originated from the lack of an objectively written article on the Bookstore. Also, while the anonymous letters were appreciated, they allowed students to make claims about alleged inconsistencies without tangible support and journalists are not allowed to do this. As a result, in consultation with my advisor, the Letters to the Editor policy (see adjacent page) was enacted. The Knight will stand by this decision. An example of an anonymous letter that would be acceptable would be one written on Sexual Abuse or someone giving an account as an AIDS victim. However, letters involving common knowledge policies i.e. alleged bookstore practices, administration "bashing" or regulation criticisms must be signed and the names will be printed.

Perhaps no one can effectively respond to the anonymous letters in the last issue. Perhaps, those persons will be at the next Nova College Student Government Association meeting with petitions calling for an investigation — which is held every Monday at 4:00pm in the Rosenthal Student Center — perhaps not. At least we had a glimmer of student concern amidst all of the apathy — even if it was behind an opaque veil. Nevertheless, let's try to keep it up and own up to the claims we make so that everyone has a chance to respond effectively.

Alpha Chi Thanks You

Dear Editor,

On behalf of Alpha Chi, I would like to thank Dean Phil DeTurk and Dr. Robert Preziosi for their contribution to a successful scholarship awards reception. We were very pleased with the turnout of scholarship recipients and faculty.

Alpha Chi is honored to have the opportunity to recognize recipients of scholarship for their hard work and individuality. Far too often, scholarship achievement goes without recognition, unlike other more conspicuous accomplishments such as excellence in athletics.

Alpha Chi Society is an extension of such deserved recognition. We hope all recipients [of this year's reception] will strive to become members of our society.

This is the second year Alpha Chi has hosted the Scholarship Reception. In future years, we will look to see more participation from members of Alpha Chi as they become aware of the importance of the reception to the philosophy of Alpha Chi. I would like to extend my special thanks to Alpha Chi members: Nancy Sanguigni and Raiysa Rodriguez and staff co-sponsor Caryn Asleson and Student Life for their contribution for the success of this year's reception.

Censorship is Unjust

Dear Editor,

For the past three years, the music industry has undergone some radical changes.

There have always been problems with public exposure: for instance, the Rolling Stones released a song with the lyrics "Let's spend the night together." The media fought to have these words distorted and slurred together when it was played. When the Doors played on the Ed Sullivan Show, they were personally asked not to say the word "higher" because it implied drug use.

Many record companies voluntarily have labeled CD's, LP's, EP's and cassettes: "Parental advisory—Explicit Lyrics" stamped on their covers. Some victims of this scrutiny are Jane's Addiction, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Slayer, Alice in Chains, Tesla, Ice Cube, Digital Underground, and the most famous 2 Live Crew.

I understand labels that restrict minors purchasing the items. However I don't feel the government should be able to tell the public what they can or cannot listen to. This is a clear violation of the First Amendment.

The whole concept of censorship is to control what minors hear and believe. Authorities do not want children believing the literal side of some songs. This problem should be addressed in the home, not in Congress.

The freedom to express oneself is being punished unjustly!

More Women Needed in Power

Dear Editor,

The September issue of "The Update" published the list of search committee members for the position of University President. As a female member and graduate of Nova University with a vested interest in the selection of a new president, I was disappointed to see only two women on a search committee of fifteen people—a 13% representation. It became obvious to me that women are not fairly represented on the search committee or at the higher levels of management in Nova University. At present, there is only one female vice president. If female representation on the search committee is an indication of the number of female deans or center directors, I believe Nova University has a serious problem.

What a sad statement Nova University has made to a student body that is nearly 60% female (Nova Facts, December 20, 1990). Where are the administrative role models of leadership for these students to follow?

The March 11, 1991 issue of "Datascan" (Volume 1, Number 5), a publication of Nova University Office of University Research Services, was dedicated to women in higher education. Today college enrollments show women outnumbering men and this trend is expected to continue through 1997. These female students should have role models at every level of the University not just at the faculty level. Perhaps now is the time for Nova University to have more women deans, vice presidents and trustees in order to meet the needs of the present and future student body.

The first action of the Board of Trustees can take is to appoint more women to the search committee. The women on campus deserve fair representation on this committee. The second action the Board of Trustees can take is to make a commitment toward hiring qualified women for the upper level management positions at Nova University. A woman president would be a great start.

Nova Knight Should Change Policy

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you after examining the Letters to the Editor section of The Nova Knight publication (November 12, 1991 issue). I have a basic concern toward the editorial process of your publication, namely, the acceptance and printing of letters to the editor, but omitting the names of those who wrote the letters.

When the slightest evidence of a "cloak of mystery" exists in such a highly visible section of a publication, it can potentially have a negative impact on the credibility of that publication. Furthermore, how can one effectively and totally respond to a point of view, if the writer is not known?

I strongly recommend that the editorial process of The Nova Knight include the printing of the names of individuals writing letters to the editor.

Thank you for giving this recommendation consideration.

Tips For Future Justices

By J. Margo

Well, they're finally over! The Senate confirmation hearings came and went, and in their wake they left a newer, enlightened society on the possible reverberations of sexual harassment. So, in lieu of recent developments, I offer these suggestions so that you, should you ever receive a Supreme Court nomination, can protect yourself against the slings and arrows of Senator Joe Biden.

1. If you notice a hair on a Coke can, don't mention it to your co-workers. It can only come back to haunt you.
 2. Never, no matter how witty the plot, discuss the most recent porn flick you've watched—especially in mixed company.
 3. Never, no matter how accurate, compare yourself to anyone in the porn flick—especially in mixed company.
 4. When Senator Biden asks you if you would consent to a polygraph (that's a lie detector for Florida HS graduates), say "Clarence didn't take one, and neither will I." A precedent like this works in most cases.
 5. When working with anyone that has a degree above an Associate's, do not use words like "Hooters," "Jugs," or "Bazoombas." You never know when these words will come up again.
 6. If you are really pressed for an answer, stand up and scream, "How come Kennedy hasn't said anything?"
- and of course. . .
7. Never let them see you sweat.

Well, I hope you find these tips useful and follow them to the letter. I wish you great success in your quest for a seat on the Supreme Court and, keep in mind, if you do not make it all the way, at least you can be assured of a job grilling other candidates on a Senate sub-committee.

Public Safety Hosts Three Day Crime Prevention Exposition

By Umesh Odhrani

October's crime prevention month was kicked off by the Public Safety Department of Nova University, which hosted a three day Crime Prevention Exposition from Oct 1 to Oct 3.

Several police departments and security vendors attended the Expo to provide information about personal, home and auto security. The Public Safety Dept. recruited officers from Coconut Public Safety Dept., Pompano Beach, Cooper City and also The Broward Sheriff's office. Salespersons from companies such as Security products, SCC Security System and Home, Accu-cut Locksmith, Security Works, Echo Private Alarms and American Automobile Association attended the Expo to teach students and faculty more about protecting themselves with the help of their products and information.

Along with the free food and beverage, that were handed out, four 19" color televisions were raffled off as well, during the three day Expo. Ginny Corbys, Nickie Swain, Patricia Robinson and Charles Mathis were the lucky winners of these televisions.

Nova Public Safety Crime Prevention coordinator Paul Sohmer said that the student turnout was tremendous, especially with student interest in learning more about protecting themselves.

Community interest for the Expo ran high, as coordinator Sohmer was interviewed briefly by WINZ news radio and the Community News. Also, Joy 107 FM news director Audrey Lynn held an hour long mini-crime prevention seminar with Paul Sohmer prior to the Expo.

Paul Sohmer also held seminars September 25 and 30, as well as on October 16 on topics of: security in the dorms, date rape awareness, and alcohol abuse prevention for Residential Life.

Mr. Steve Bias, director of Public Safety, also found a positive response from the students, faculty and staff.

Nova University Establishes Joint Master's Program

Nova News release

Nova University has recently established the only joint master's program in accounting and computer information systems in Florida. "This new program will give professionals comprehensive knowledge and skills in both areas," said Laurie P. Dringus, Sc.D., Director of Master's Programs for the Center for Computer and Information Sciences at Nova.

The program was designed for working professionals and include courses in advanced accounting, data communication systems and networks, systems design process, evaluation of accounting packages, and taxation of individuals, corporations, and partnerships. To obtain a master of accounting and computer information systems, students must complete 39 credit hours of study, which usually takes about two years.

"We found that most of the accounting computer personnel—those who create accounting programs—have little or no accounting competence, and almost all accountants have no in-depth computer education," said Edward Becker, Ph.D., Director of Graduate Accounting Programs at Nova's School of Business and Entrepreneurship. "Most colleges have yet to recognize the urgent need for this type of co-training. Business consultants who have expertise in both accounting and computers are in great demand," he adds.

The School of Business and Entrepreneurship of Nova University offers doctoral and master's programs for working professionals emphasizing administrative and managerial effectiveness.

Boston Men Join Women in Pornography Protest

NSNS

Wanting to help end their own gender's harassment and degradation of women, anti-sexism men's groups from several Boston colleges and universities joined more than 1009 college women and faculty members in a demonstration on October 14, 1991 outside a pornographic video store that recently opened in the vicinity of three women's colleges.

Male students from schools including Harvard, Tufts and Wheelock College took part in the protest organized by the Women's Alliance Against Pornography.

"If men do not speak out against pornography, then it will be the sexist, abusive, and violent men who would come to speak for all men," says Jackson Kaatz, a member of "Harvard Anti-Sexist Men."

Jackson, a graduate student researching a thesis on the social construction of violent masculinity in sports and the media, says that because it is men who produce, sell and buy pornography, it is up to men to stop it.

Wheelock College professor of Women's Studies Gail Dines and special education major

Sarah Stevenson, two of the protest organizers, welcome men's support.

"Men have to confront other men about their collaboration with the pornographers," says Prof. Dines.

According to Dines, studies show that pornography increases the rate of rape and aggression by men toward women.

Wheelock junior, Stevenson, agrees with Dines. "I don't think it is enough for men to say they are against sexual discrimination or harassment," she says. "I think they have to go out and show their support."

Harvard Anti-Sexist Men are involved in speak-outs at high schools and colleges, have picketed outside Andrew Dice Clay and Sam Kinnison concerts because of the comedians' sexist jokes, and have handed out leaflets at sporting events to educate men they feel would otherwise be unable to reach.

The group is also planning to commemorate the December 6th Montreal Massacre of 1989, in which a man walked into a classroom at a technical school and killed all the female students. A letter, later found in his pocket, blamed feminists for his troubles.

Safe Food Handling Tips For College Students

Nova News Release

Many college students use small microwave ovens or toaster-ovens to prepare food in dormitories. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Meat and Poultry Hotline gets many calls from parents and students with questions about the handling and storage of foods in dorms. Here are some sample questions and answers with tips on safe food handling.

Q. Our dorm has a kitchen with a microwave on each floor. Often food prepared according to the printed directions is not cooked as thoroughly as I like it. What is wrong?

A. In a large building like a dorm, other electrical equipment such as personal computers, toaster-ovens and stereos can compete for current and reduced electrical wattage of a microwave. A microwave oven may also be used more frequently than one at home. A microwave oven that has just cooked several foods often takes slower than a cold oven. To compensate, set oven for the maximum time given in

Although coalition members and David's supporters exchanged insults, it was a non-violent demonstration.

A more violent exchange occurred on October 17, 1991 while David was on a campus radio station talk show. Although University police don't know what caused the fight, students interviewed say White Student Union supporters attacked coalition members with numchucks and chains. Three coalition members required stitches following the incident.

Melinda McGowan, member of the Progressive Student Organization, believes that David is promoting violence and should not have the right to speak his views.

the instructions, or add several seconds more cooking time.

Q. I am living off campus this year. My two roommates and I will be preparing our own meals. We know how to cook and we plan to buy healthy food. What else do we need to know to avoid food safety problems?

A. When shopping, buy perishable foods last and get them home quickly. Never leave perishable food in a hot car. Freeze any fresh meat, fish or poultry you won't use the next few days. Thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator. Cook food thoroughly. Never partially cook food. If you feel food has not been handled safely, throw it out.

Q. I frequently send "care packages" to my son at college. What other foods besides cookies, crackers and candy can I send safely?

A. Send a sampling of the new shelf-stable, microwave entrees now available in supermarkets. They are not frozen and keep fresh without refrigeration for more than 18 months. Loaf cakes ship well if wrapped in aluminum foil and packed in a can or a box. Hard or processed cheese and some sausages need not be refrigerated as well.

Q. My daughter's college is only a four-hour drive away, so she comes home for the holidays. How can I safely pack leftovers for her to take back to school?

A. The leftover foods should be divided into small, shallow containers and cooled in the refrigerator prior to the trip. Pack a cooler with ice or a freeze-pack insert, and add the cold containers of food to the cooler when she's ready to leave. You can also freeze foods prior to the trip as well. During the drive, the foods should be kept in the passenger area of the car.

For answers to other questions about food safety, call USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

What's Happening on Other College Campuses?

Wisconsin Students Get Hate Speech Rule Overturned

Students at the University of Wisconsin won a federal lawsuit on October 11, 1991 to overturn a hate speech rule that was instituted in 1989 after complaints of incidents of sexism and racism on campus.

US District Court Judge Robert Warren in Milwaukee said the rule was unconstitutionally vague.

Fraternity Supports Ban on Grain Alcohol

Maurice Littlefield, spokesperson for the national fraternity Sigma Nu, announced support for a proposed ban of 190 proof liquor in Virginia on October 25, 1991. The grain alcohol has twice the alcohol content of other forms of hard liquor and cannot be detected in punch.

Overcrowded Classrooms Lead to More Cheating at UC Davis

The increase of students and the lack of classroom space had made it easier to cheat at the University of California at Davis, according to the Student Judicial Affairs Committee.

The committee said there has been a 40% rise in reported cases of academic misconduct over the last five years.

Gay students Accuse Tufts of Inaction

Gay students at Tufts University held a speak-out November 4, 1991 to protest the administration's failure to establish a full-time liaison to the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community. The liaison was recommended by an official task force.

The speak-out also called for more action against anti-gay harassment on campus.

Charges Filed Against Man for Selling Criminology Term Papers

Charges were filed on October 27, 1991 against A. Engler Anderson for allegedly writing term papers in criminology for students at the University of South Florida.

If Anderson is found guilty, the state prosecutor recommends that he donate $500 to the criminology department. One of the two students who bought his paper from Anderson was expelled. The other was dismissed from his major.

Indian Students Trapped in Gun Battle

The Dhaka University camps turned into a battleground in October 27, 1991, two students were killed and 15 injured during an exchange of gunfire between two political groups.

Riot police cornered off the campus and may enter the area to pry out gunmen and rescue trapped students and teachers.

shower and a main room. This main room will double as a bedroom as well as a living room. Inside it will be two beds, two desk sets and two dressers.

Nova's Resident Coordinator Tammy Jones likes that the Fall 1992 undergraduate students will have the option of living there.

Jockeying for parking spots will no longer be a problem for residents. Nova will not only supply the undergraduates with needed parking spaces for this building but will make the parking lot larger then necessary. The larger parking lot will be needed sometime down the road for the "F" Residence Hall coming soon to a Nova.

Sexual Harassment

"I think only men can change other men's behavior. What they're doing is a healthy reaction to the incredible increase of sexual crime and violence that have occurred in the last 10 years."

While many men's groups are taking direct action on their campuses by holding protests or demonstrations against sexism, others are seeking to educate their fellow classmates. Still other men's groups are simply trying to deal with the sexism they see in themselves.

Little Man Tate:
Foster's child prodigy

by Marco Dattini

Jodie Foster and Adam Hann-Byrd in Little Man Tate.

"Little Man Tate" is a surprisingly good movie from debuting director and long-time actress Jodie Foster.

This movie is the unlikely story of a unique little boy named Fred whose mother, played by Jodie Foster, refuses to allow a equally genius child psychologist, Dianne Wiest, to raise him.

This light-hearted film centers around Fred Tate, played by Adam Hann-Byrd, who is a fatherless child raised solely by his mother.

Fred's mother is portrayed as the direct opposite of Fred: uneducated and bullheaded. Yet, she is strong and loving, and truly cares for her son.

Dianne Wiest notices Fred and thinks his mother's actions are remote and insufficient. They are lacking and inadequate for his needs.

Dianne Wiest owns and runs an elite child prodigy school, and wants to enroll Fred. It is at this point that Jodie and Dianne butt heads.

Although Adam Hann-Byrd portrays the character of Fred Tate as a realistic and touching young boy, he falls just short of depicting the pain the boy was suffering as he dealt with the loneliness, sadness and existentialism that comes with such a high level of intellect.

It was dramatic without being overbearing, and it was an interesting and entertaining glimpse inside the strange world of a genius named Fred Tate.

Zone: an extra sensory experience

by Jason Domasky

Zone's "Born of Fire" album weaves an integrated aural tapestry of tribal, choral, classical, and modern programmed music.

British composers and songwriters Chris Brandrick and Andrew Cadmore describe Zone as the creative working relationship by which they express their theories about human nature.

"Born of Fire" alternately mesmerizes and surprises the listener with Gregorian chanting, looped tribal drum sequences, lone piano passages, clanging bells and gongs, echoing percussion treatments, and a stunning reproduction of an atomic explosion.

Zone exploits the compact disc medium by paying special attention to clarity and scope in its recording. A careful listening reveals that the sounds seem to arc outward, beyond the familiar dynamic range of recorded music.

"Born of Fire" explains the differences between the world's cultures as the various attempts by humankind to experience love, life, and light.

The accompanying booklet includes haunting pictures and excerpts from like-minded literature; the lyrics to the sole vocal track, "The Butterfly Effect," and reprints of the same information in Italian and Japanese.

Potentia Records, from the United Kingdom, and Musica Maxima Magnetica, from Italy, jointly released "Born of Fire" last year, dooming it to minimal availability in the United States.

Record stores handling imports can probably order this unique compact disc for the adventurous listener. A domestic release is unlikely due to Zone's apparent ignorance of conforming to any marketable trend.

A haunting image from Zone's Born of Fire

Public Enemy distinguishes the genre with a trademark industrial sound.

PE and Geto Boys:
hard beats, powerful message

by Greg Stallard

Public Enemy's "Apocalypse '91...the Enemy Strikes Black" and the Geto Boys' "We Can't Be Stopped" are two powerful new releases in the rap industry.

Hard core and harshness are shared characteristics between the two. A great deal of rap music is simple and pointless, but Public Enemy and the Geto Boys prove intelligence can sell over ego-strutting and sexism.

Public Enemy's style goes beyond rap into the realms of industrial music. The music is hard and the tracks are excellently produced with multiple layers of sound.

Their new release proves they still know how to stir up controversy. Their songs exemplify the oppression of the black race, the promotion of malt liquor within the inner city, and radio industry's fear of playing their music.

The compact disc includes a hard core version of their old hit, "Bring the Noise," performed jointly with metal artist Anthrax.

Standout tracks are "Lost at Birth," "Rebirth," "Can't Truss It," "Move!" and the new version of "Bring the Noise."

The Geto Boys are not as well-known as Public Enemy, but deserve attention. The music is not as expertly

Wes Craven
Fails To Frighten

by Greg Stallard

Wes Craven's latest movie, "The People Under the Stairs," is only average. Save your money.

This movie is about a strange family that owns the ghetto. The horror, curiously enough, resides within their house. People live in the walls and the basement.

Fool, a young boy who lives in the ghetto, wants to help pay his mother's rent to avoid eviction. He is told a great fortune is hidden in the house of these villains, and joins with some local criminals to rob it.

Fool's mother is sick and needs an operation, and therefore cannot earn the money. This is one of the reasons the movie does not live up to the horror genre; it focuses too much on Fool's family problems.

Once Fool is in the house, he earns about Alice, a girl who has never been outside. He also discovers the weird, long-haired, unfit, stolen sons who live in the basement.

Fool also meets Alice's crazy parents, the hereditary owners of the ghetto, who are actually brother and sister and cannot conduct themselves as parents or humans.

The most powerful character in the film was the wife, exerting her dominance over the "family." Of course Fool eventually steals the squandered money to pay his mother's rent.

Craven spent too much time making his movie into a confusing social statement instead of bringing the audience a horror film. At times, he even injects failed attempts at humor, which cancels out any kind of horror the viewer might experience.

Although Craven's horror ideas were on the right track, he did not do a good job keeping the viewer scared.

This is the same director who brought us the frightening "A Nightmare on Elm Street!" One could say he has lost his touch.

Hard core Geto Boys share the lead in a new era for rap music.

produced or layered, but the simple beats provide a soothing alternative.

The single from the compact disc is "Mind Playing Tricks on Me," a current radio hit, but the best song is an anti-military rap bluntly titled "F—

k a War."

If you enjoy rap music or have an open mind, then pass over such groups as Naughty by Nature and pick up the new Public Enemy or Geto Boys disc.

Amok Press: the extremes in information

by Jason Domasky

The "Amok Dispatch" book catalog, a mail-order service of the Amok Book Store in Los Angeles, makes available extremes of printed information to the public.

Amok obnoxiously brandishes the Constitutional right of the freedom of the press with the "Fourth Dispatch" catalog.

The selection of books ranges from esteemed philosophical works to racist, sexist, perverse rants about torture, death, and predatory behavior.

Titles like Nietzsche's "Beyond Good and Evil," John Minnery's

"How To Kill (Volumes 1 to 6)," Nikola Tesla's "Complete Patents," "The Autobiography of Malcolm X," and Vatsyayana's "Kama Sutra" grace its pages.

Brief descriptions of some of the books drive the imagination wild. The reader is told that Charles Platt's "The Gas" was banned in England and put Platt in jail. An explicit excerpt from the book confirms its controversial nature.

A book called "Vampires Are," by Stephen Kaplan, is described as research and proof on the existence of vampires. An illustration is shown of a United States map of vampire distribution in 1982.

The "Fourth Dispatch" categorizes books in topics such as mayhem, sleaze, sensory deprivation, and neuropolitics. An equally bizarre selection of cassettes and video tapes is also offered.

The fear that these unrestrained texts could end up in the wrong hands might unnervingly some readers.

Bob's News & Book Store on Andrews Avenue in Fort Lauderdale carries a wide variety of Amok's offerings.

The Fisher King: a film with a lesson

by Greg Stallard

"The Fisher King," directed by Terry Gilliam, goes further than most films; it is a powerful, philosophical work.

In this movie Jeff Bridges plays a talk show host on top of the world, but circumstance sends him straight to the bottom. Bridges lives on alcohol and battles his memories, which are holding him back from once again climbing to the top.

One day he accidentally meets a crazed bum, played by Robin Williams, who shares some shocking similarities. Bridges feels obligated to help him out. They both learn to put the past behind them and go on with their lives.

Gilliam did a brilliant job with the camera, helping us to visualize Bridges' and Williams' struggle with their own year.

After viewing this film, it is evident that Gilliam is showing us that life has its struggles. These struggles can hold us back, but if we put the memories behind us, we can move on, yet still hold the memories as valuable lessons for future problems. Life has so many.

Gilliam also shows us that friends are very important, and anyone could be a true friend.

Love is an important aspect of this film as well. "The Fisher King" proves that love brings true peace into one's life.

Everyone should invest in viewing this four-star film.

RSA Fights for More Convenient Postal Service

By Ricardo Pedro Deveau

After weeks of negotiating with the Davie postal service and the Office of Residential Life, Nova University now has a mail drop off box.

The box is located in front of the Rosenthal Student Center and is now available for use. The postal service will pick up mail from the box twice daily.

We would like to thank Ms. Tammy Jones, Director of Residential Life, The Davie Postal Office and the students who supported us in this project.

This is a project of the Officers and members of Resident Student Association (RSA). Please support our efforts.

RSA has undertaken other projects during November.

A food drive was held Nov. 18th to

Nov. 22nd. to assist underprivileged families during the Thanksgiving Season and The courtyard of Building D was cleaned.

RSA is also trying to put together a shuttle service for students without transportation and to arrange for a coin machine on campus.

Ricardo Deveau, RSA president, said, "As an organization, we are trying to address concerns that students are having." He further stated "RSA can only serve the student body if students are willing to assist in the organization efforts."

If you have any project that you would like to see accomplished, please contact your RSA Representative on your dorm floor or Ricardo Deveau. We are willing to serve you.

Let RSA Work For You!

NISA Fest A Success!

Nova's International Student Association held their '91 International Luncheon on Friday, November 15th in the Rosenthal Student Center Cafeteria.

Nova Power Force Club of the Month

By Adrienne M. Bucchi

For those of you in attendance at Nova's first basketball game, Friday November 15th, you may have wondered if you were at the right school. The gymnasium was alive with active support, and yes, SCHOOL SPIRIT!

The Nova Knight Force, a newly formed Nova College Pep Squad, was the "force" behind this new attitude. Led by President Christine Tapper, members include Tonia Farmer, Nicole Whitmore, Betty Sylvestre, Aka Ali, Tangia Alvarez, Christine Grimes, Sylvia Jackson, Barbara Montalmond, Marian Rodriguez, Michele Estez, Tyeisha Blackman, Monique Keith, and Dana James. In only a few short weeks, the group learned a variety of cheers and dance routines, lined up uniforms, organized Nova's first "Pep Week," and held a pep rally before the game.

"The group formed in an attempt to bring some much needed school spirit to Nova. Their achievements in such a short time are phenomenal," said Lori Savka, Advisor for the Force. "There were over 200 people in attendance at our first home game who were very supportive of their team. That's never happened before. I think the Nova Knight Force has become a catalyst for change on the Nova campus. It has fostered a flood of school spirit which Nova has been unable to develop in past years."

The Force plans to attend all Knight home games and hopefully some local away games. They also hope to outfit a school mascot by the end of the season.

The group encourages new membership. Students who want to join the squad but felt uncomfortable doing routines need not worry. Members can do the cheers from the bleachers without having to do the stand-up routines. Interested members should contact Lori Savka in the Student Life Office, room 208 RSC, 452-1400.

The Force plans to do a T-Shirt sale in the near future and asks everyone to support their

Ozone Depletion

By Bridget Insinna

The chemical/industrial revolution has forever scarred the world population. From the earliest generations wanting to give us the automobile to the generation of today, we have created consequences that we must live with. Oil pollution, acid rain, ocean pollution, and ozone depletion are only a few of the problems we face today; however, the latter is of the utmost importance.

The ozone layer is our protection from the sun's fatal ultraviolet rays. When the "big bang" occurred, small particles of many gases and dust formed at the highest part of our breathable atmosphere and gathered over the entire planet. This invisible layer and our most important means of survival, is slowly deteriorating every second of the day.

An effect of the layer's deterioration is the melting glaciers. Upon discovery of the hole, scientists postulated since the sun's rays are much stronger in a portion over Antarctica, the glaciers would begin to melt, initiating a change that will alter our continents' appearance forever. As these masses of ice slowly melt, the sea levels will start to rise, and because Florida is just a few feet above sea level, it may be one of the first land masses to sink. The same phenomenon will happen to the Hawaiian Islands, and also to portions of California and Australia.

The Greenhouse Effect exhibits yet another link in the ozone catastrophe. This effect occurs when the planet's temperature becomes too hot and a heavy blanket of carbon dioxide gases form. The accumulation of these gases traps the heat emitted into the atmosphere because of the lack of protection from the ozone layer. The overabundance of carbon dioxide does not allow much oxygen in and thus suffocates the environment. This obviously has a lasting effect on the planet's inhabitants, including plant life.

Plants give off oxygen for us to breathe and in return, we breathe out carbon dioxide for the plants. An excess of carbon gas will cause the plants to die because their systems cannot handle the excess gas. Their death results in a lack of oxygen, and a decrease in the food supply. This in turn has a drastic effect on us.

When scientists discovered the ozone hole above Antarctica they found that it was a result of the accumulation of forty to fifty years worth of chemical pollutants. If the hole is only the culmination of the past fifty years, then how many more years of scar tissue have we created since?

By the time we discover the damage from these years, we will have another thirty to forty years worth of annihilation to look forward to!

The environmental awareness that has grown in the past few years has made a change in the way we, as individuals, live. The message about chloroflourocarbons has stressed that aerosols must be used less frequently or better still, not at all. Also, some of the industries have found ways to decrease the pollutants they emit. Each of these will undoubtedly reduce future damage. However, the damage already done cannot be reversed and is, as the seconds pass, making its mark.

Help Me!

By Carrie Russian

A helpless bird drowning in an oil-slicked bay. A magnificent Humpback whale hopelessly entangled in a net carelessly tossed into the ocean by a fisherman. A smokestack releasing harmful pollutants into the atmosphere.

Our world faces these problems, along with countless others, each day. The question is, how can we as individuals get ourselves out of these predicaments?

Organizations are designed to alleviate the deteriorating condition of our planet. But these organizations desperately need help, your help.

Joining these groups is simple. Dedication and strong desire are all that is necessary. A letter of concern can get you on your way.

These organizations range from saving your hometown park to saving our oceans. Getting involved will give you an overwhelming sense of accomplishment. Start small and work your way up.

What condition of the world distresses you the most?

Answer this question— then spend a few minutes writing to the organization of your choice.

The earth will love you for it!!

TO CARE NOT CONQUER

diamond street lights sparkle in a young explorer's eyes as he embarks on a new journey into the man-made jungles surrounding her dying soul.
pushing away vines,
slicing down branches,
he brings her his fountain of youth, hoping she will drink from his cup and bring her back to life

WEALTHY AND ALONE

Life is here and life is gone
Without a love to call my own

Power and money controlled my time
Don't need anyone I'll be fine

Never had anyone to embrace
No one at all just an empty space

Never had anyone to talk to or to care
Just sit here with my books and blank stare

A good looking man in my day
A fact I'm afraid has gone away

For all my work a million dollars I've got
But someone to share it with I have not

My advice to you I'd have to say
Love beats a dollar any day

-Jason Hanson

TOGETHER

As I lay beneath the cold heartless sheets
Images of you cloud my thoughts

Your loving breath
dancing by my ear
The heat of your body warming my soul

Together we loved-Together we cried

Bodies entwined
I pick you up
Through the stars we soar
to the heavens we elope

Together we loved-Together we cried

With you at my side
Passion, romance at my side forever happiness flame-
Oh, my aching heart

Together we laughed-Together we cried

A step ahead
you have met eternal life
A step behind
I await your welcome
Together we will die

Together we loved-Together we cried
Together we die

THE GIFT OF FRIENDSHIP

Friendship is a priceless gift
That cannot be bought or sold.
But its value is afr gretaer than
A mountain full of gold.
For gold is cold and lifeless
It can neither see nor hear,
And in the time of trouble
It is powerless to cheer
It has no ears to listen
No heart to understand,
It cannot bring you comfort
Or reach out a helpong hand.
So when you ask God for a gift
Be thankful if he sends,
Not diamond, pearls or riches —
But the love of real True Friends.

Doctors were optimistic after the surgery and Vince was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit. Vince was released from intensive care Thursday night and was released from the hospital on the following Wednesday, November 6th.

Vince was the top pitcher for the Knights in 91', going 13-4 and being named to the All-District and All-Conference Teams at the end of the season. Vince opened the 91' season with a no-hitter against Miami's Florida Memorial College and went on to beat such teams as University of Detroit, Glassboro State, and Northeast Connecticut State.

Since this experience Vince has dropped his classes but is still staying here on the main campus. His doctors told him to have no physical activity for the next two months. Vince walks to stay in shape. He has a very positive attitude about his returning to the field.

"The doctors say that I can begin training again in two months. I'm going to try to be ready for the beginning of the season in February," Vince explained.

"If I don't play this season, then I'll get a medical voucher so that I can play the following season. This might work out now that I won't be graduating on time," explained Vince.

"In my heart I would like to see him back this season, but in my mind I don't think that he'll come back at 100%," Coach Sonny Hansley continued, "He is a great competitor, and it may take waiting until the 92' season for him to come back at his full potential."

Coach Hal Henderson Leaving After Illustrious Career

By Dan Finn

After an illustrious career that spanned for 27 years at five different colleges, Nova Co-Head Coach Hal Henderson is leaving the soccer field.

However, he will remain at Nova and will concentrate his efforts on Sports Training.

Henderson finishes his career with a record of 193-200-31. His four season record here at Nova is 45-23-3.

Hal's coaching career started back in 1965 when he was named Head Coach at the University of Colorado. Over the next 27 years he coached at Rockford College (IL.), The University of Wisconsin, St. Leo College (FL.), and at Nova.

During the 1988 NAIA National Soccer Championships, Hal was inducted into the NAIA Soccer Hall of Fame for his "Meritorious Service" to the association.

"Losing in the first round of the play-offs was not exactly the way I wanted to end my coaching career," said Henderson, who, like everyone else, was looking to play Lynn University in the finals.

"I feel like I have done everything there is to do regarding coaching soccer, and there are some other things I will be working to accomplish."

Nova Fails To Make First Round of Post-Season Play

By Dan Finn

On Friday November 8th at Flagler College, Nova University's soccer team battled through regulation and two 15 minute overtime periods, only to fall to rival Flagler College at the 6:35 mark of sudden-death in the semi-championship round of NAIA District 25-F play, 1-0.

This marked the third straight year that Nova failed to make it through the opening round of post-season play. The losses in 89' and 90' both came against Georgia opponent Berry College. Both of these losses had extended into past regulation play.

This loss ended the Knights season at 11-5-3 and cost the team the opportunity to play the #1 seed, Lynn University (formerly College of Boca Raton).

In the game against Flagler, both teams had plenty of chances to score throughout the game. Flagler out shot Nova 14-11. The winning goal was scored by sophomore Alan Okell, on a breakaway where he drove the ball by Nova goalie Rohan Jackson.

"Our players were extremely disappointed with the results," said Co-Head Coach Thomas Rongen.

"I don't think that we left anything on the field; the game was a great effort by both teams," he added.

Nova was only shutout three times during the season. Two of those shutouts were by Flagler. The other shutout loss was by Jacksonville University.

Amidst many injuries and difficulties during the season, Nova finished with a fine record and some impressive wins against some tough teams. Nova finished the season being ranked #22 in the NAIA final rankings. Flagler finished #25.
